

BROKER STABBED IN HOTEL LOBBY

R. H. Ross, Oil Well Supply Man, Is Knifed in Cheek and Jaw.

ASSAILANT IS SILENT

Crowd in Hostelry See V. B. Hogan Attack Victim; Held by Police.

R. H. Ross, oil well supply broker, was stabbed in the left cheek and jaw about 10 o'clock yesterday morning by V. B. Hogan, also a broker, while standing in the crowded lobby of Hotel Tulsa. The weapon used was a pocket knife.

According to Ross and bystanders who witnessed the incident, Hogan approached Ross, quickly drew his knife and stabbed him. Those who saw Hogan's action believe he intended to seize Ross's pocket watch, but aimed at such too high.

The injury was not serious. The knife blade penetrated Ross's cheek and jaw, lacerating the skin near the root of a tooth. A physician dressed the wound. The injured man returned from his room at the hotel to the lobby within a few minutes, little the worse for the encounter.

Hogan, who stated to walk away after the incident, was detained by onlookers, until police arrived. He was booked on investigation and gave out no statement regarding the cause of his action.

The affair happened so quickly that many persons in the lobby knew nothing about it until a crowd had collected around Ross. The only words spoken by Hogan, who immediately after his action, said to Ross: "You know who I did it." There was no argument prior to the incident.

Ross said he was not even acquainted with Hogan, and could not think of any motive for his act. It is probable that a charge will be preferred against Hogan, charging assault with a deadly weapon.

Personal Neglect

Many times you will see a professional or business man wearing a pair of glasses of the quality found in a 10 cent store. It is not so much a question of expense as it is carelessness in not taking the time to have the eyes examined and having made the proper lenses. You can not spend an hour once in a year to better advantage than having your eyes examined by one competent.

Father Is Fined for Permitting Child to Dance Before Public

The "shimmy" dance is not necessarily outlawed in Tulsa theaters, but when performed by a child less than three years old, it brings prosecution under the child labor laws of the state and as a consequence an information was filed yesterday against M. C. Nevins, owner of the Broadway theater, and Walter McLeod, the child's father, in the court of Justice H. J. Gray.

At their arraignment yesterday, both Nevins and McLeod entered pleas of guilty to violating the child labor law in allowing a girl under the age of 14 years to appear on the stage at a public performance, and were fined $10 and $5 respectively.

Edgar M. Campbell, agent of the state labor board, after signing the complaint, told the county attorney that the child's father had been arrested at Muskogee for this offense, but upon promise to take the child off the stage had been given his freedom. According to Campbell the child was again placed on the stage of the local theater and allowed to perform. The state labor board authorities will attempt to stop the child from dancing in the state statutes, a charge of violating the child labor laws was filed against the father and the theater manager.

TO UNIFY METHODISTS

Most Important Action Taken by General Assembly of M. E. Church, Rev. Abel Says.

A review of the legislation passed at the recent general assembly of the Methodist Episcopal church, some of which legislation will be far-reaching in its effect upon the denomination, will be given by Rev. J. W. Abel, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, at the church service Sunday morning under the title, "Where Do We Go From Here?"

The vote for unification of the two Methodisms was the most important action taken by the general assembly, according to Mr. Abel. The plan for unification was not determined and negotiations will be continued with the M. E. church, south, by a committee composed of three laymen and 15 members selected from the general conference districts of the church at large.

While at the assembly, which was held in Des Moines, Iowa, attended by 850 delegates, Mr. Abel was a member of the boundaries committee, which adjusted the boundaries of the church districts all over the world, and of the educational committee, through a report of which the assembly voted that books not in accordance with the doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal churches should not be placed in the course of study of the denominational theological seminaries.

TULSA BOY MEETS DEATH IN STREAM

Body of Steward Hamilton Drowned in Hominy Creek Not Yet Found.

The body of Steward Hamilton was recovered at 5:25 o'clock yesterday evening about 100 yards down stream from the point at which he had went down. Search for the body proved difficult because of the large amount of debris in the river and it was thought that the debris was partly responsible for the drowning.

Steward Hamilton, 13-year-old son of J. R. Hamilton, living at Sixth and Main, was drowned at the Hominy creek ford a mile from Owasso about 3:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The young man was employed by the Lantry Construction company, and was working on the bridge now being constructed over Bird creek on the Ozark trail. It was necessary to cross Hominy to get to the scene of the work.

Hamilton, with four companions, in a wagon driving a team, started to cross the ford. It had been crossed safely the night before and it was not believed the water was too high for safety. When in the middle of the stream one of the horses fell down. The wagon was in a precarious position and young Hamilton and two companions started to swim toward the nearest bank. Lewis Prichard, gang foreman, and Speed Hamilton, a brother to Steward, remained behind to try to extricate the horses.

As soon as Steward reached the bank he saw his brother and Prichard working with the horses. He returned to the water and started to swim to the wagon. His head appeared once, then disappeared and did not reappear.

Prichard succeeded in unhooking the team and bringing the horses to safety. None of the other occupants of the wagon were injured. Young Hamilton's body had not been found up to a late hour last night.

BRING DIRECTED VERDICT

Court Instructs Jury to Find For Defendant in Damage Suit.

Directed by the court to bring a verdict for the defendant in the suit of Virginia Lowery, a minor, by her father, C. W. Lowery, against J. E. Lawless of Santa Ysidro, in which damages of $10,523 for personal injury to the child in an auto accident, the jury in superior court yesterday found as instructed.

The child sought damages as the result of injuries received in Santa Ysidro November 21, 1919 when she was struck by a delivery truck operated by an agent of the defendant. Under the testimony introduced the court held that the driver of the truck was not at fault and the case was directed against the petitioner.

HOLD OSAGE SHOOL PARTY

Black and Gold Decorations Mark Classroom Mixer Yesterday.

Black and gold, the school colors of the Osage school, dominated the party given by girl reserves from 3 to 5 yesterday afternoon for the school boys. The classroom in which the party was held was decorated with yellow field flowers and pennants and the young hostesses appropriately wore black and yellow aprons and caps. When the close of the party and the serving of refreshments came, gold napkins with black margins were distributed and the color scheme was completed in the chocolate ice cream, which by a stretch of the imagination could be termed black and gold. Miss Mildred Kling, assistant girls work secretary of the Y. W. C. A., directed the games.

A combined bath towel and tooth brush holder contains a space for a card bearing the name of the owner of the articles.
